THE SNOW SHOE REGION

Historical Sketch of This Beautiful Section

OF CENTRE COUNTY

Written by James Gilliland of Snow Shoe and Originally Published in 1881—Interesting Sketch of Local History.

EARLY SURVEYS AND OWNERS OF LAND

In 1881 there was published at Washington, D. C., by Thomas McGill & Co., a little paper bound book giving an interesting history of the Snow Shoe region, Centre county written by James Gilliland of Snow Shoe. Through the kindness of Ray D. Gilliland we are allowed to publish a series of articles from this book which will appear from week to week. Let it be understood that the name "Snow Shoe" in this history, applies to all that region of country comprised within the limits of Snow Shoe and Burnside townships.

One motive for the publication of this history of the Snow Shoe region, is the belief that the history of the settlement of any part of our county is both interesting and instructive.—EDITOR.

EARLY SURVEYS AND OWNERS OF LAND.

The first surveys made were in pursuance of six warrants, dated 18th of May, 1773, in the names of D. Tyson, Samuel Clark, Samuel Wetherel, Josiah Matlock, Richard Jones, and Hezekiah Hubbard, containing in the aggregate 1673 acres, and were executed by Thomas Smith in September of the same year. They were located on the Indian path a short distance beyond the Old Snow-Shoe Tavern, and extending west a short distance beyond J. H. Holt's. On the map returned to the land office the Indian path is nearly and correctly laid down, as also the Indian camp, the site of which is near the spring and a few rods from the house now occupied by Calvin Rankin. On the surface of the map a semi-circle line is drawn, on which is written in a neat, bold hand: "SNOW-SHOE CAMP SURVEYS."

The tradition that the camp took its name "from the adventure of a party of white hunters who were out on the old Chinklacamoose trail, were overtaken there by a snow storm, waited until their provisions were exhausted, and then made snow-shoes and walked into the Bald Eagle settlement," is, in the opinion of the writer, not correct. It seems to him that a moment's reflection deprives it of plausibility. Previous to 1773 there were but few settlers in Bald Eagle Valley; Indians were roaming through the country, so that it was perilous to travel away from the settlement; game was abundant in the valleys, and no necessity to travel over the Allegheny Mountains to hunt. Colonel John Holt, who settled in Bald Eagle Valley in 1782, claimed to be the first white man that followed the Indian trail to Snow-Shoe to hunt game. The conclusion, therefore, seems to be, that Thomas Smith found at the Indian camp snow-shoes left there by the Indians, and hence named the surveys "SNOW SHOE CAMP SURVEYS."

Thomas Smith was one of the first judges of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and, with Judge Breckenridge, presided at a Circuit Court at Bellefonte in May, 1807; and in the eighty-fourth year of his age held a Circuit Court at Bellefonte in the month of September, 1832. William Smith, provost of the University of Pennsylvania, and who laid out the town of Huntingdon a few years previous to the Revolution, was his brother.

Bishop White, of Philadelphia, became the owner of these tracts at a very early day, and sold the D. Tyson tract to Valentine & Thomas soon after they commenced manufacturing iron near Bellefonte. They opened the coal a few rods from the site of the Snow-Shoe camp. The other tracts were divided by John G. Lowrey, agent for the heirs of Bishop White, in 1841, and sold to settlers.

The next surveys made were in pursuance of warrants issued to Phebe Morris, John Shoemaker, and Daniel Shoemaker in 1784, and are described as being "on the Chinklacamoose path, north of the Moshannons;" and the path is laid down upon the map. No resurvey has been made of them. The owner in 1826 sent out William McMinn to look for them, but he did not succeed in finding the lines; they were dropped from the tax books, and junior surveys covering them were afterwards sold for taxes, so that the title has been lost.

About the same time, or a few years later, some four or five tracts, known as the Lewis Lewis surveys, were made, and claimed to be in Snow-Shoe, because a stream called Beech Creek was represented as passing through them; but as it was put down as running south, which was up the mountain, there was not much reason to hope that they would be found on that creek; and although much time was spent in hunting them, they were never found.

The remainder of the land was unappropriated until 1792 and 1793. There were two lively years in locating warrants. Aaron Levy, of Philadelphia, and Samuel Wallace, a prominent man in colonial times, were competitors in locating warrants in Snow-Shoe. By explorations both ascertained the extent of territory, and in the spring of 1792 commenced surveying. Levy superintended his personally, and Wallace had an agent named McClure. They did not get through that year, and returned in the following spring. As an evidence of the rivalry that existed between them, a copy of a letter from McClure, found among Wallace's papers, is given, written at their camp, near Little Moshannon Creek:

"SAMUEL WALLACE, ESQ.

"DEAR SIR: I send the bearer to hurry up the warrants. Levy and his party have gone up the Susquehanna from the Great Island in a canoe; and as these lands are rich in quality, hurry on the warrants. Pay him for the bear's-meat, but if he charges for honey, don't pay him; for he promised to furnish it for nothing.

(Signed) "McCLURE."

The surveyors employed by the parties were McClure, Daniel Turner, William Wilson, and Squire Hanna, who died at a very old age, in Clinton county, some years ago. Turner and Wilson, were citizens of Centre county. The writer is indebted to Squire Hanna for much of his information in relation to the original surveying in Snow-Shoe. The two parties came in contact near where Doctor Stewart now resides, before they had exhausted their supply of warrants, and, when about to engage in a fight, Levy proposed to make equal distribution of the land yet unappropriated, and thus the war ended. And strange to say, that notwithstanding both parties had a surplus of warrants, they left a gap of over two thousand acres, which the writer covered with warrants sixty years afterwards.

The Levy lands of 1793, connecting with the Wallace lands on the south, were sold in 1837 by the Gratzes, of Philadelphia, who had become the owners of them, to St. John Smith and others, of Portland, Maine, and by them, in 1855, sold to E. C. Burton and others, and are now owned by Samuel Crist, of Lock Haven. The Levy tracts of 1792, connecting with the Wallace lands on the north, are owned by Smith and Rhoades. Adjoining the latter, and perhaps overlapping them to some extent, are the Boudinot lands, now owned by the city of Philadelphia, and were surveyed in pursuance of warrants of 1794.

Nathaniel Simpson, who lived near Bellefonte, in 1815, located several warrants covering Wallace lands. James Harris, Sr., county surveyor, refused to return them because they covered land not vacant.

The Gratzes became the owners of all the Levy lands, except a few tracts bordering on the river, which Levy retained, and what remains of these tracts unsold are now owned by his heirs.

Samuel Wallace, being reduced in circumstances, failed to pay the taxes on his lands, or to look after them, and they disappeared from the county records. About 1825 the Messrs. Gratz employed John Mitchell, of Bellefonte, to resurvey the Levy lands, and finding the Wallace lands connecting, resurveyed them also. They were returned taxed, and in 1834 and 1836 were sold at the tax sales, and purchased by Joseph and Jacob Gratz.

In or about 1850, when Snow-Shoe was awakening from its slumbers and rising in importance, the heirs of Samuel Wallace awoke also, and brought ejectment suits against the Messrs. Gratz for forty or more tracts, all the Wallace lands, except what the Gratzes had previously sold and received the pay for. These suits were compromised by the parties. The Wallace heirs released their claim for a consideration paid them in money. Ex-Governor Curtin and Judges Hale and Mallary, the attorneys of the Graizes, became joint owners with them in pursuance of an agreement by which they were to have an interest in the event of a compromise.

THE FATAL LIGHTNING!

Killed Six at Coney Island.

STORM WAS TERRIFIC

Intense Heat of the Morning Attracted Great Multitudes to the Shore Resorts.

TROUBLE CAME FROM THE WEST.

New York, July 31.—During a thunder storm of terrific intensity which passed over New York Sunday afternoon, five persons were struck by lightning and nine were seriously injured at the Parkway baths, Coney Island. At the same time one man was killed and three prostrated at Gravesend beach.

Those killed:
George Dunwoodie, Buffalo.
Jacob Frankel, Manhattan.
Robert F. Wasch, Bronx Borough.
Charles Bennerie, Brooklyn.
Frank Bennerie, Brooklyn.
Henry Ranseweiler, Brooklyn.

The injured:
David Wills.
James J. Dunne.
Tina Christiansen.
Harry Krohn.
Clara Thiel.
Mary L. Curley.
Isaac Raffe and wife.
Amelia Schone.
William Ranseweiler.
John Apple.
Daniel McCauley.
All of Brooklyn.

The intense heat of the morning attracted a great multitude to the shore resorts and late in the afternoon when the storm blew up from the westward the Parkway beach was thronged with bathers and spectators. The rain descended in torrents and hundreds of men, women and children sought shelter under the big bath house, which is elevated above the sand on piles. The lightning was incessant and terrific thunder claps shook the bath house to the terror of the crowd huddled beneath it. A few minutes before 5 o'clock a bolt struck the flagstaff and grounded in the very thickest of the crowd. Nearly fifty persons were prostrated and the rest, screaming with terror, rushed out into the storm. Those who had remained in the water were also panic stricken and fled in all directions, not daring to enter the bath house, which appeared to be on fire.

Ambulances were summoned from all the nearest hospitals and on their arrival five persons were found dead and nine unconscious under the bath house. The bodies of all were scorched by the electric fluid. The nine injured were removed to a hospital, where it was said that some probably would die. Many persons less seriously hurt were taken home by friends. A slight fire in the bath house was quickly extinguished by the rain.

About the same time Henry Ranseweiler was struck and killed while sheltering under a tree at Gravesend beach and his son William, with John Apple and Daniel McCauley, were rendered unconscious.

Lightning struck at various points in the city. A store in Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, was burned and a car in Sixth avenue, Manhattan, was set on fire, but the occupants escaped unhurt. The electric light and the telephone wires in Bellevue hospital were struck several times, extinguishing all the lights and causing much alarm among the patients.

Salona Methodists Will Re-Open Church Sunday.

The re opening of the re-modeled Methodist church at Salona will take place on Sunday and all day services will be held—morning, afternoon and evening. Rev. J. I. Reeser, the pastor of the church, has been planning for these opening services for some time and has secured a number of ministers to speak.

Rev. Dr. W. P. Shriner of Carlisle will preach morning and evening, and at the afternoon services Revs. Uhl, Creighton and Grover will be among those to make short addresses. The Sunday school session will be held before the morning service and the public is cordially invited to all these services.

The Methodists of Salona have expended over $3,000 in remodeling their church and now have a very neat and comfortable house of worship. The greater part of the money needed for the work has been pledged.

Reservoirs Burst.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 31.—Loss of life and immense damage to property followed the bursting of the reservoirs north of this city as a result of the unprecedented fall of rain early yesterday morning. The dam at Ward's Mill at Easton went out at 2 o'clock sending a great body of water down through the town of Trumbull. In a short time the dam at the paper mill reservoir broke. The house occupied by John Lesco, his wife and several children, were picked up by the flood and carried a mile below. All were rescued, however, after a perilous journey.

A house occupied by Michael Moran was hurled against the Berkshire bridge and smashed to kindling wood, it is believed that Moran was drowned. Police and firemen saved several children.

In North Bridgeport the water swept against the Barnum avenue bridge and wrecked it just when an ice wagon was crossing it. In the wagon were William Kowzeski and John Starkin. The wagon and horses were swept and drowned. Starkin was able to swim ashore.

Funeral of M. S. Graham.

The funeral of the late M. S. Graham took place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of Benjamin Williams on North Penn street. There was a large attendance of people and as a mark of respect to the deceased (who had been in the barbering business in Bellefonte for 50 years) every barber shop in town was closed. The services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Wood, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, assisted by Rev. J. E. Morris, of the A. M. E. church.

There was a large choir present and several selections were rendered. The floral tributes were profuse and beautiful.

The honorary pall-bearers were the barbers of the town: Messrs. R. A. Beck, William Storm, John L. Nighthart, Frank Sasserman, William Nighthart, William Mills and John Mills.

The active pall-bearers were trustees of the A. M. E., church. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

—Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, a celebrated Methodist Divine, died at an early hour Saturday morning of paralysis at his home in Minneapolis.

THEY FEAR MASSACRE!

Baiting of Hebrews Continues in Russia.

DON'T SLEEP AT NIGHT

Fearing Attack They Have Reversed Usual Order and Now Sleep by Day—Strike Situation.

THE SOLDIERY PATROLLING STREETS.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The baiting of Hebrews continues in many parts of the country. At Kharkoff and Odessa the Hebrew baiting is assuming enormous proportions and the greatest alarm for their safety is felt by the Hebrews living in these towns. Similar animosity against the Hebrews is being displayed at Sestrorezk, which is only 30 miles from St. Petersburg.

The Hebrew residents of the town are in such great fear that they no longer dare to sleep at night, fearing an attack will be made upon them. They have reversed the usual order of affairs, sleeping in the day time and doing their work at night.

The special counsellors of the czar were called to meet at Peterhof Tuesday to consider the project for the proposed national assembly. The czar is anxious to go over the plans for the assembly once more, and the counsellors were called together for the purpose of giving this review to the scheme as it has been arranged. The czar acts as president of these meetings, and the discussion takes place in his presence.

It is understood that the elections for members for the proposed national assembly will be held October 14, and that the first meeting of the assembly will be held at St. Petersburg November 14. The emperor has the right to prorogue or dissolve the assembly, as well as to determine the duration of the session, according to the amount of business to be discussed.

The president of the assembly can authorize the presence of the press at the sessions except at such meetings as are declared secret by the president or a minister for reasons of state.

Reval, Russia, Aug. The strike situation has assumed a serious aspect. A strike began Tuesday at the Dvigatel works, where the workmen offered up prayers before marching on the streets. They visited other factories and demanded a cessation of work. The governer has posted a notice warning the people that arms will be used against crowds refusing to disperse.

Lesser disorders have already occurred. The strikers proceeded to the prison to demand the release of six workmen recently arrested, but the crowds that gathered around the prison and in the streets were dispersed. The soldiery is now patrolling the streets.

Big Time at Howard.

The Good Will Hose Co., of Howard, will hold a basket picnic in Butler's grove at that place, on Saturday, August 12th, and it promises to be the largest gathering of the season in the valley. Extensive preparations are being made to present a large, varied and interesting program of amusements. Among the principal features are the following: Music will be furnished by three brass bands, while a splendid orchestra will provide music for dancing in the large pavilion. An interesting game of base ball for the championship between Centre and Clinton counties will attract unusual attendance. Among other amusements will be slackrope walking, sack races, greased pig catching; greased pole climbing, foot racing, shooting gallery, phonograph and talkaphone music.

Refreshments of every description, confections, etc., will be served; also a lunch counter will provide nourishment for the inner man. The committee are making every effort to give a grand outing and a gala day for young and old, rich and poor—one and all. You will be welcome.

—The United Brethren church will hold a festival this Thursday evening in front of Amos Garbrich's residence at Colevillle. All are cordially invited to come and bring their friends.

A Venerable Turtle.

A land turtle with an authenticated history of over a century lives on the old Wiest farm, in Oley township, several miles from Boyertown. Daniel Wiest, a grandson of the first man by that name to settle in Oley, when 18 years old found the turtle in 1796 and cut the date and his initials in its shell. After his death, in the fall of the year, the inscription "1796—D. W." was renewed from time to time by his brother John. He died in 1838 and the renewal of the inscription was then continued by his son, Daniel Wiest. His death occurred ten years ago, and regularly every summer since then the turtle has been seen on the Wiest farm, generally in the meadow. This farm has been in the possession of the Wiest family since 1740, when John Wiest came from Wurtemburg, Germany and settled there.

H. C. Baney's Good Fortune.

H. C. Baney, formerly of this place, but now of Atlantic City, has struck it rich as the following dispatch in one of the city papers will testify:

Millville, July 24.—A company known as the Millville Filter Sand and Brick company has purchased a tract of about 260 acres of land two miles south of Millville, and it has now been discovered that it contains thousands of dollars worth of pure silica sand, worth $3 per ton. These officers have been elected: President, H. C. Baney, of Atlantic City; secretary and treasurer, Charles A. Idler, of Atlantic City.

JOHANN HOCH REPRIEVED !

The "Bluebeard" and Confessed Bigamist Not Hanged.

STAY UNTIL AUG. 25.

Money Sufficient to Appeal the Case to the Supreme Court Raised by Unknown Friends

ONE A LAWYER, NAME NOT GIVEN.

Chicago, July 29.—Johann Hoch, "Bluebeard," and confessed bigamist, sentenced to be hanged Friday for poisoning one of his wives, was granted a reprieve until August 25 by Governor Deneen. The stay of execution followed hours of anxiety on the part of Hoch, who never gives up hope, and was allowed by the governor only after the latter had been assured that the necessary sum to appeal the case had been raised. The amount, $500, was given by an attorney and friend of Hoch's counsel. The attorney declared he was actuated by purely humanitarian motives.

An incident at the jail during the preparations for the execution was the appearance of a physician and a woman who told Jailer Whiteman that they wanted to help in Hoch's battle for life. They said they wished to raise funds for the condemned man and asked Jailer Whiteman to delay the hanging as long as possible. Hoch's attorney, however, had already been in communication with the authorities respecting the stay of sentence.

All arrangements had been made for the execution and in view of the action of Governor Deneen Friday in refusing a stay of execution and similar action by the state board of pardons, Hoch's chances for life were considered slight.

About the time set for the execution the attorney who furnished the money appeared in the case for the first time. This attorney, it was said, telephoned to Hoch's lawyer that the former had $500 to give toward aiding to appeal the case. The two lawyers hastened to the jail and told Jailer Whitemen of the money secured and arranged with the jailer to postpone as long as possible the execution of Hoch.

Meanwhile they sought State's Attorney Healy and had him arrange a conference with Governor Deneen over the long distance telephone. Hoch's counsel told the governor that there was lacking only a small sum of the amount necessary for a review of the case. After discussing the matter with the state's attorney, the governor finally consented to a stay for the condemned man and so notified Hoch's counsel.

Hoch, even several hours before the time set for the hanging, was quite confident of executive clemency, although at times he seemed to despair of receiving a reprieve.

He had retired early in the night and awoke at 7 o'clock Friday morning, cordially greeted his death watch of two guards and talked with them for some time. He changed his clothes and seemed resigned to the fate that awaited him, but he assured his few visitors that there might be a chance for him yet.

He received his attorney, two ministers, Jailer Whitman and Dr. F. W. McNamara, the jail physician. Hoch discussed with them his prospects for a stay and reiterated his innocence of the charge of murder. He read the Bible and said his prayers.

Meanwhile, unknown to Hoch, the negotiations for the reprieve were progressing. It was noon and the delay up to this time inspired Hoch with renewed hope. He ate dinner, smoked a cigar and read.

Half an hour later through the windows of his quarters, he having been removed from the cell he had occupied, he received the news of his reprieve. It was conveyed to him by spectators of the proceedings in the state's attorney's office, which adjoins that of the jail building. He was disinclined to believe the news at first, but when it was brought to him also by the ministers he was overjoyed. He clasped their hands and declared that he was the happiest man alive. The crowd about the jail sent up a shout that could be heard for blocks. The prisoners joined in the demonstration and Hoch was almost overcome.

Hock said: "If the supreme court decides against me. I am willing to die. I ask no mercy and no favor. I believe in the law but I feel that if the supreme court has a chance to review the case it will result favorably to me."

Hoch's attorney announced that he would at once prepare to appeal the case.

Star Boarder Arrested for Alienating Wife's Affections.

Jersey Shore has a real live up-to-date scandal on hand, says the Lock Haven Express and it will be aired at the next term of court. The case is one in which an aggrieved husband has lost his wife's affections and he estimates that they are worth $5000 to him.

The action is brought by Asher D. Rogers of Jersey Shore against J. R. Wilson. Asher charges Wilson with alienating the affections of his wife, from whom, it appears, he has been separated. Wilson claims that he simply went to board with Mrs. Rogers, together with another man, after she had been separated from her husband. The plaintiff demands $5,000 damaged. One of the features of the case is a hand-to-hand conflict between the men which occurred on July 10, in which it is said that Mrs. Rogers interfered. Wilson is in jail under $500 bail.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LARRY'S ANGEL.

By Frances McElrath.

"Tell me, Martha, how on airth did somebody know them angels rang bells?"

"Wait till I get this muck out lambie."

As Martha Swan tossed the dirty straw out of the stable into the yard, Larry Trask, perched like a rosy cheeked, golden-haired cherub on the edge of a cow manger, discused the making of angels with her.

"Martha," he said again, referring to a newspaper cut in his hand, 'how'd you guess some feller knowed how to draw that, anyway?"

"Lemme see."

Martha took the paper, and leaning on her pitchfork, studied the picture of the angelic choir.

"Well," she said, slowly, "I guess mebbe he had to be teached to make the lines right fust An' I guess mebbe the way he come to know they rang bells was by readin' books an'—an' thinkin'," Martha's ideas of culture were pretty vague. "Guess mebbe readin' an' thinkin' helped him considerable, lambie."

"Well, then, Martha, how on airth am I ever goin' to make a angel, too?"

"Why, lambie," said Martha, hanging the pitchfork on its nail, "there ain't jest only one way for you to do it. You'll hev to go to school an' learn."

"To town!" Terror filled Larry's eyes. Then he drew a sigh of relief. "You hain't anyway to git me to town," he said, triumphantly. "Pa's got the team all day."

Martha smiled knowingly "I'll git you there," she said "an' you best start right today. School opens today, an' it ain't only seven o'clock now. I'll pack you to the school-house on my back."

"Oh, Martha!" A flood of affectionate pro est filled the little boy's beautiful eyes "I ain't a-goin' to let you be my hoss f r no angels on airth!" Larry declared.

"Sho!" Martha laughed indifferently. "I'd jest git shet o' scrubbin' the henhouse by takin' you."

It required considerable arguing, but at last, carrying a lunch of bread and bacon in a tin can, mounted on Martha's strong, flat back, Larry crossed the three miles of prairie to the little frontier town where he began his quest for art.

When Martha got back alone she went hastily to work to clear up the litter of papers covered with sketches of angels that Larry had left on the kitchen floor

"He thought it looked mean, me bein' his hoss!" she murmured, fondly.

Objections were seldom raised to her performing undignified tasks.

A rattle of tin cans heralded the approach of the milk wagon, and Martha pushed the coffee boiler onto the front of the stove, took down the side of bacon hanging against the wall, and cut off some thick slices, Martha never had been educated in dainty housekeeping, but she had received one impression during the short time she stayed with Larry in the school house that morning, and that was that the other children brought their lunches done up in napkins.

Martha made a resolve. It was tremendous, but she stuck to it all the time she was getting dinner. When her father came silently in, and seated himself at the table, she passed him the beans and bacon and filled his cup with coffee. Then she spoke.

"Pa," she said, "will you give me a little money?"

Adam looked up with a discouraging frown. "What for?"

"To buy a napkin for Larry to take his lunch to school. He's started goin'." Adam returned to his dinner. "I ain't' scrapin' an' savin' to buy other folkes kids napkins!" he said.

"I guessed mebbe you'd say that," Martha replied, "an' I guessed, too, that mebbe I'd tell you Allenses'll pay me twenty dollars a month to go to work for 'em, an' I kin take Larry along. Ef you say so, we'll pack over there tonight."

Adam eyed his daughter narrowly. He knew her to be a young person of strong decision and few words. After a minute he pushed a quarter across the table. Martha pushed it back.

"Never mind, pa. I guess mebbe I better go to Allenses. Larry can't go barefoot to school much longer. an' I ain't goin' to hev him wearin' my old shoes an' stockin's, like he does on the ranch winters. I've never asked you before to pay out money for Larry sence you give me leave to bring him here when his folks died An' ef—ef after me workin' for you ever sence I kin remember and never goin' among folks in my life, nor hevin' purty clothes like other girls, nor bein' a girl at all, but only a work critter—ef all the good you've got outer me sence I was big enough to pack in a bucket o' water don't call for your given' me a little wages now, I'm goin' to Allenses, for Larry's got to hev decent clothes, an books an' all the things he needs to git an eddication, an' I'm goin' to find the money somewhere for him."

Adam picked his hat up from beneath his chair, and walked out of the kitchen. An hour later he came back.

"Martha," he said, quaveringly, "it's a square thing for a man to be hirin' his own gal, but ef your're so ongrateful you won't work without, I'll give you eight dollars a month."

"All right, pa." Martha said cheerfully; "so long as eight dollars keeps Larry, I'll stay for that. It's time now to go fetch him."

So all through that school year and the succeeding one Martha carried Larry to and from school on her back, and she clothed him comfortably, Larry's progress and enthusiasm repaid her for the trouble His hungry young soul eagerly absorbed the wonders in his books. At night he rehearsed what he had learned during the day. Many happy evenings were spent in the ranch kitchen, Martha patching and listening reverently to the ardent child as he related simple facts she never before heard.

Larry's teacher noted his aptness at drawing, and told Martha that he ought to have special instruction. Martha pondered. A young lady in town gave painting lessons, and one day Martha took Larry to an exhibition of her work in the Gem House parlor.

The array of roses and pansies seemed bewilderingly gorgeous to Martha, and it dismayed her to hear Larry scoff at them.

"She don't paint right," he declared as they left the hotel. "Look at this here leaf ag'in the sky. It ain't a black line clear around the edge like hers."

"No more it ain't, lambie," Martha acquiesced.

Larry's discriminating judgment of Miss Smith's work edified Martha, but it sent her heart down like lead. She could not keep her eyes off the little boy that evening. She was realizing with keen intensity how he filled with lovliness all the nooks and crannies of her barren life. At bed time, with unusual emotion she clapped him tightly to her breast.

Larry's slim arms twined about her neck in ready response.

"We love each other very much; don't we, Martha!" he whispered.

Martha waited that night until Larry was asleep, and her father had gone to bed, then she wrote a letter.

It took her a long time to write it. She addressed it to Mrs Anson Malby, in New York City, from an old card she had.

"Onored lady," it ran, "I no wat yor nom is from mis trask ho was yor sister ho died an her husban died to on their ranch for year bak and she tol me her family never liked her matryin sam trask so they wood not like her baby an she cried auful an i sed i wood tak car of him only he is a genis an a milk ranch aint no fit place fur a genis so i rite to ask ef you ken help lern Larry to draw an i send you some pikters he made to sho how he is a genis an orter be taut, respeckfully martha swan, p s it ain't bekus of larry being unwelkom that i rit this letter."

Martha regarded her epistolary effort with disfavor. Larry's parents had been fine folks, although they were so unsuccessful with their ranch, and no doubt the rich sister would be a fine person too.

"Well," thought Martha, humbly, "mebbe my letter'll show her plain how Larry oughter live with better eddicated folks."

Suddenly she looked about with wide, scared eyes. How would it seem to have Larry's hat gone from the door peg, an' no papers littering the floor! "Mebbe Mis' Trask's sister won't take him!" she hoped, against her better judgment.

One afternoon about a month later Martha was very solemn bringing Larry home, when they reached the ranch she broke the news. Mrs. Maltby had written that she had known nothing of her estranged sister leaving a child, and that she would take boy and educate him. She sent a check to carry Larry to New York

Larry listened astonished and horrified. "Course I won't go!" he said.

"Well, then, ain't you never goin' to paint that there angel!" retorted Martha. The hardest task Martha ever undertook was to persuade Larry to accept his aunt's offer. But at last her gentle arguments prevailed, and he sobbed out his consent.

"I wouldn't say I'd go, Martha, you'd jest have to throw me away before I'd leave you, only I guess I must learn all about those little lines that makes such a difference in a picture!" he said.

Larry's first letter was full of wonders of New York, and his aunt. He was not afraid of her at all, and she was as beautiful as kind. She had lovely pink cheeks, and she wore beautiful dresses.

Martha glanced at her coarse clothing and calfskin boots. "Well," she said, softly, "mebbe my lambie'll like her nice ways a heap more after seein' me."

Larry's monthly letter became the event of Martha's days. She followed his life closely. He had a girl to take him to school now (not on her back!) and he rode a pony in the park, and he was learning to draw in earnest. Sometimes he inclosed little sketches in his letters, for Martha to pin on her kitchen wall.

And so the winter passed, and other winters and summers. Time brought few changes to the milk ranch. Adam grew more silent and miserly, and Martha's life grew narrower, if that was possible, as the years went by, and outwardly more cheerless. But her big heart held always one rejoicing that kept it fresh; Larry was not exposed to the penuriousness of the ranch, but was living like a prince.

Finally news arrived that dismayed Martha greviously Larry was going abroad to study art! Then after a long wait a letter came telling with passionate enthusiasm of the cities he had visited and the pictures he had seen. "I am studying hard," he wrote. Evidently so, for his letters grew rare and briefer

It was a time when his letters would have comforted her greatly. Her father's rheumatism had caused a deep heaviness to fall upon his spirits, and Martha's work had increased with his illness

At length Adam Swan died. Martha sold out the milk business after his death, but with a dog and a horse for companions she continued to live at the ranch. Adam, it transpired, had accumulated a small fortune by his close saving, and in a frugal manner Martha was independent.

She started one evening to write to Larry, from whom she had not heard for several months, when a ranchman driving by from town brought her a newspaper. The wrapper was postmarked Paris.

Martha suddenly began to tremble violently. She surmised the news the paper contained! It was addressed by Larry's aunt Martha recognized the writing, although it was ten years since her letter came. Something had happened to Larry.

At last she could summon courage to open the paper. Her eye fell on a long column headed:

"Laurence Trask's Guardian Angel!"

Martha devoured the article ravenously. Then for hours she sat motionless, bathed in inexpressible delight. Larry had painted his angel at last, and had made a name for himself, and had set all Paris talking.

It was Martha's triumph as well as her boy's, yet she quailed before it.

"Mebbe he's too great to be writ to now," she thought, and put away her pen.

But a few days later she had cause for severe self reproach. A letter arrived from Larry. A dear letter! He had been very, very busy. Martha must know, making himself famous! And that was not all he had to tell. He was about to be married (Martha gasped,) and he was coming back to America and straight to the ranch with his wife to get Martha, for she must live with them always hereafter—his Nellie said so. And he was ever her loving Larry. And P. S., He hoped she liked his picture. Photo inclosed.

Martha rather dazed picked up the unmounted photograph, hardly noticed in her eagerness to read the letter. She had to clear her eyes of their joyous mist before she could examine it.

"Why," she murmured, dsappointedly, "it ain't sech an awful purty angel in the face. But mebbe—well, she does look sort o' natural like, an' I guess I see what the paper meant about folks feelin' just how she loves that there child from the way she's a-lookin' at him. Seems es ef I most feel her feels myself, spite 'o them beautiful white wings. Seems a' moot as ef I really, really knowed her. Seems—Why. It ain't—" She rose in a sort of a terrible alarm, and to the little mirror in her bedroom. "Yes it is!" she whispered, awesomely. "Larry's angel's me!"

A Modern Bluebeard

or the adventures of a Female Sherlock Holmes a realistic romance founded on fact by Fanny May. You who have been reading the daily papers can easily imagine how the thought came to the author's mind to write this story. Though purely a romance, many of its most sensational and dramatic scenes are based on fact. It is a startling expose of a wicked man's wiles. This realistic romance begins in No. 1644 of THE NEW YORK FAMILY STORY PAPER.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1st.

The determination of the government to get to the bottom of the irregularities in the Department of Agriculture is shown by the action of the court today in the cases of the recalcitrant brokers Haas and Peckham who were subpoenaed from New York to appear before the special grand jury and who refused to answer the questions put to them. Both the brokers were accompanied by counsel and refused to answer the questions asked them first on the ground that the court had no right to inquire into their private business and second claiming that their answer might incriminate them. This is one of the last pleas that a witness usually adopts and made it seem more apparent to the jury that the brokers were keeping back something that might be of vital interest in the investigation. The attorneys for the witnesses asked that they might have till Monday to pass on the questions, but the court ruled that they must answer at the meeting of the grand jury on Saturday. It is believed that Judge Wright, before whom the meeting is being held, will direct the witnesses to answer the questions put to them or take the alternatives of going to jail. Both of the witnesses have able counsel and while they on Friday reiterated their first decision not to reply to the questions asked them, it is probable that they alter their minds when confronted with a jail sentence for contempt of court.

There was another mild sensation in the Department of Agriculture Monday by the presentation and prompt acceptance of the resignation of Dr. Geo. T. Moore of the Bureau of Soils. It appears that Dr. Moore had while connected with the Bureau published a pamphlet that was printed by the department on the enrichment of soils recommending the use of certain nitrogenous compounds. The compound as is the custom in any such cases, was patented in the name of Dr. Moore by the Department of Agriculture as a protection to the farmers and assuring the freedom of the nitro culture for farm use At the same time a company known as the Nitro Culture Company of West Chester, Pa., was formed to manufacture the compound and an offer of a good block of stock in the company and a liberal salary was made to Dr. Moore for his services. Dr. Moore communicated the offer to the Department but his resignation was not accepted and a isear of salary was promised him. The matter dragged along without the increase of salary being granted, and Dr. Moore's wife held the stock in the company while Dr. Moore continued to work in the bureau. This state of affairs continued till brought out at a hearing in the Department last week. Dr. Moore promptly tendered his resignation to the Secretary of Agriculture and it was accepted and the whole action made public in a statement issued by the Department.

It seems that the affairs of the Government Printing Office are not to rest with the conclusion of the Keep Commission which has been investigating the purchase of seventy-two setting machines for use in the Department. This commission has concluded its investigation but the results have not yet been made public. Meanwhile there is a congressional committee headed by Senator Platt of New York, that has been authorized to inquire into the affairs of the office. It is stated that the Government's printing bill has increased from three and a half millions in 1898 to $7,000,000 at present. This increase has been largely in connection with matter that Congress thought the government need not be required to print, and the first meeting of the investigating committee is looked forward to with considerable interest. It is probable that the committee will cut off some of the useless expenditure and that a good deal of useless printing will be dispensed with without hurting the efficiency of the largest printing establishment in the world.

The Navy Department is congratulating itself on the receipt Saturday of a communication from the armored cruiser Pennsylvania that has just arrived at Tomkinsville, showing that she has broken the record for armored vessels by doing a trial with a regular crew on board at a rate of 22.8 knots. This makes her not only the fastest armored vessel in the Navy but the first time that a vessel in the Navy has beaten her builder's trial with a regular crew. The speed of the Pennsylvania on her builder's trial was 22.4 knots.

Secretary Taft and Party.

Kioto, Aug. 1.—Secretary of War Taft and his party spent Sunday morning quietly. Some of the members of his party attended church while others visited the temples. When the party left at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon on a special train for Kobe there was another remarkable demonstration. At the station a great crowd awaited Secretary Taft and Miss Roosevelt and began cheering when their carriage arrived, the ovation continuing until the train started. The band played the national anthem and "Auld Lang Syne" as the train pulled away from the station.

Kobe July 30.—Secretary Taft and party arrived here at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon from Kioto. They were the recipients of an enthusiastic welcome from the governor and the mayor and city officials and assembled thousands. Amid a display of day fireworks the party proceeded to the water front, where a short reception was held. Secretary Taft and Miss Roosevelt were given a number of presents.

The steamer Manchuria sailed at 10 o'clock Sunday night from Nagasaki.

Captain Robert H. Noble, Third United States infantry, military aide to Governor-General Wright, of the Philippine Islands, officially met the secretary of war and his party here.

On the Retired List.

Samuel Caldwell, a venerable and highly respected resident of Altoona, was retired Friday evening from the service of the Pennsylvania railroad company, which he served long and faithfully in Altoona He was a gang foreman in the Twelfth street boiler shop and would not have been placed on the retired list of the company for one year and six months yet (when he will reach the seventieth mile-stone in his journey through life) but concluding that he was getting too old to work longer, asked the company to retire him and when the whistle blew Friday evening his life's work in the shops was ended.

Mr. Caldwell is numbered among the oldest residents of the city, coming in 1850 from Centre county, where he was born in the year 1837. He learned the boiler making trade in the shops and was employed in the boiler shops for forty-nine years and had he remained in the shops until next April would have reached his fiftieth year of service. He entered the shops in the year 1856 and worked there continuously with the exception of two years that he was employed in a boiler shop in Pittsburg, at the end of that time returning to the Altoona shop. He had served in the capacity of gang foreman for the past twenty years and was always held in the highest esteem by his men and all the other shopmen. He is 68 years and 6 months old and has performed in a faithful and conscientious manner his life's work.

He had always been an excellent citizen, kind and loving husband and enjoys the highest esteem of every-one who knows him, and it is the earnest wish of all that he may enjoy many more years, after a life well and usefully spent.—Altoona Tribune.

China's Boycott of American Goods.

China's 400,000,000 inhabitants, if each one were educated up to the point of wanting as many things as the average American does, would make a market for import that no country in the world could parallel. At present, their individual wants are few, but the aggregate of their purchases is large, and steadily growing. And whereas the American Government has been cultivating friendly relations with the Chinese Government in certain ways, we have continued on our statute books the Chinese restriction law, discriminating against Chinese immigration to America. Not only has this law been kept alive, and re-enacted a short time ago, but its enforcement has been put into the power of men who were both ignorant and brutal. Now the Chinese have turned. They have realized what their patronage means to American merchants and manufacturers and in retaliation have instituted a boycott against American goods. On May 16 a meeting of the Fukien and Kuang Tung Merchant Guilds of Shanghai was held and the boycott was ordered. A copy of their circular has been sent broadcast through the Chinese Empire asking the natives to co-operate. The United States Consul Gracey at Fuchau under date of July 20, reported the situation as serious. The meeting at Shanghai was representative and largely attended, and a comprehensive plan of aggressive action was agreed to, reduced to writing, and signed by those present. President Roosevelt has ordered a thorough investigation and immediate reform of abuses in the enforcement of the law. That, however, is insufficient. If America desires to retain Chinese trade the restriction law, which is thoroughly unjust and un-American, must be repealed and Chinese immigration placed upon the same conditions as immigration from other countries.—Cent Per Cent for August.

England Retiring from Mexico.

Just now our interest is in the subject of America in Mexico, and it is gratifying to be able to show that the decline of British imports to Mexico, and the increase of American trade there has come about through perfectly natural causes. There has been no forcing, underbidding, of maneuvering, and the relations between the countries interested continue to be amicable. Commenting on the phenomenal growth of American interests in Mexico in recent years and the serious decline of British interests, the London Financial Times says: "We must perforce then accept as a natural and unpreventable development the grip which the United States has laid upon Mexican commerce."

In view of such candid and discouraging admissions, the announcement that the British consulate at Mexico is to be abolished, is not surprising, and the language of the British consul evidences a sensible view of the situation, and is a generous concession of our trade rights in the case. Mr. Lear says: "The investment of additional British capital in Mexico will not be encouraged. The United States is right at Mexico's door and it is reasonable that it should obtain the bulk of Mexico's trade."

We must not expect from this that Great Britain will wholly abandon Mexico as a market. The consular service will be maintained, we are told, with headquarters at Vera Cruz, and Britons will secure what trade they can.—Cent Per Cent for August.

—The Prohibition state convention will convene at Williamsport, August 22 and 23.

John Hay's Services to Commerce.

Under Col Hay the consular service reached a new level of efficiency and discipline. The lower grades are now being filled with young men of energy and quality, who intend to make the service their career. Promotions and transfers have become more and more the rule, and vacant places are no more thrown to the politicians as petty patronage. With the enormous expansion of our export trade the role of the consul as a news gatherer has been greatly magnified. He must keep the producer here informed of changing conditions in foreign trade and industry, and must note every opportunity offered for enlarging our markets, This work the consul of to-day is doing vastly better than his predecessor did it ten years—or even five years—ago. One of Mr. Hay's last administrative acts was to recommend to Congress the creation of a special body of commercial agents, charged with the investigation of trade conditions abroad. These agents, assigned by Congress to the Department of Commerce and Labor, are to act independently of the consular service and are to report on the outlook for new markets in the special geographical divisions to which they are alloted. The experiment begins in a small way; but it may lead to an up-to-date and efficient special foreign information bureau. This effort to broaden the usefulness of the consular service harmonizes exactly with the spirit of Mr. Hay's diplomacy. Our future triumphs, he wisely realized, are to be the triumphs of commerce and industry—his diplomatic policies aimed always at laying a broad basis for that commercial expansion for which, as a nation, we shall soon be ripe. —Wm. L. McPherson in Cent Per Cent for August.

Dedication of Statue.

On Wednesday evening July 26th the handsome statue of the Blessed Virgin, imported from Italy and a gift of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Kelley was blessed in St. Mary's Catholic church at Snow Shoe by the Rev. John Brady, of Renovo. A procession of one hundred children in line marched from the Parish Hall to the church singing hymns of the Blessed Virgin. The procession was headed by cross bearer Patrick Kelley, accompanied by two acolytes. then came the boys two by two followed by the girls dressed in white. carrying bouquets. After the procession had entered the church, Father Brady proceeded to bless the statue. A presentation address was made by Walter Langton, A crowning piece was delivered by Catharine Harrington. while a closing piece was presented by Arthur Kern. Following these cermonies a most beautiful, eloquent and instructive sermon on the life and virtues of the Blessed Virgin was delivered by the Rev. Father Brady, afterwards benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament took place.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, banks of cut flowers and potted plants adorned the church on all sides, while a myriad of lights surrounded the altar on all sides. Too much praise cannot be given Miss Elizabeth Glenn for the admirable way she trained the children Music was furnished by the choir, presided over by Miss Elizabeth Kelley. In all it was a grand and impressive cermony, and one that will not be forgotten by the congregation.

Barn Struck by Lightning and Burned.

Spanish American War Veterans May Get Extra Pay.

The enlisted men of Company B who were in the Spanish War expect to secure a full month's extra pay under an act of Congress passed January 12th, 1899. The pay provided by that act has been refused by the Treasury Department, not because it is not due, but because the records in the War Department are deficient and do not faithfully show the exact status of the men while home previous to muster out, and the Auditor is bound by these records. Suit has been brought in the Court of Claims, the men securing the service of the law firm of George A. & Wm. B. King at Washington, D. C. Clark McKercher of that firm, and Thomas H. Clark attorney from the Department of Justice, representing the Government, visited this place on Tuesday and Wednesday and took the testimony of several witnesses before a special commission, and it is said the claims are fully proved and that a favorable judgment and payment will follow to those having their claims properly registered.

This is not pay for service performed, the men having received all of that, but it is a gratuity given upon muster out to men who did not have full thirty days prior to muster out entirely free from all military duty. The officers have nearly all been paid by means of a similar process in the Court of Claims, and the present effort is intended to get the same benefit for the enlisted men. S. D. Gettig of Gettig, Bower & Zerby, of Bellefonte, is local counsel for the boys of Company B in this matter, and he states that there is no doubt whatever of winning the case on the evidence put in this week.

YELLOW FEVER IS RAGING.

In New Orleans and Forty-five Deaths Have Resulted.

New Orleans, July 27.—Six deaths from yellow fever were recorded yesterday up to 6 p m, making a total to date of 45 The number of new cases reported yesterday and compiled today is eleven, making all told to date 165 cases. There are now nineteen centres of infection.

The organization of forces for fighting the spread of the infection and for a campaign of education and practical application of the mosquito extermination plans have been completed and besides one hundred men have been put on as extras to clean gutters, while 350 men are working as part of the system of sanitation. Citizens are being organized in wards and these ward clubs will form precinct clubs and a house to house canvass will be made to assure the screening of every cisiern and the oiling of every cesspool and water pond.

The business men have provided the funds for this work and as the people are now aroused to the necessity of action there will be no let up. Yielding to the sentiment of the community the state board of health on Mondoy adopted new regulations for the fruit ships, providing that they should remain six days between the last port and New Orleans and requiring fumigation at port of departure and fumigation after the discharge of the cargo.

In view of the many quarantine complications which have arisen, Mr. Souchon, president of the state board of health, has called a conference for next Sunday of the health officers of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama to discuss quarantine regulations and devise a system by which travellers can be admitted with certificates of the Marine hospital service. Surgeon White, who is in charge of all the government work will participate. The work of placing the detention camps has been finished and supplies are now being sent to them. The infection in the original centre seems to be dying out, as fewer cases are reported from there, indicating that modern methods have been effective.

The work now is to find the new centres and treat them in the same manner. Physicians are now reporting all cases of fever and whenever there is the slightest suspicion rigid sanitary rules are applied, with the result that up to now there has been no spread of any case from any of the new centres. Those which are developing are all traceable directly to the original case in the Italian quarters.

The emergency hospital was opened yesterday and patients were removed to it in a screened ambulance, Dr Guiteras, now professor of pathology of the University of Havana, but formerly of the Marine service, representing that service here during the fever of 1897 has been ordered here by the Cuban government and will arrive today.

Town Topics and Other Depravity.

Depravity becomes rare, almost inevitably, and sometime respectable, when it can accumulate sufficient gold. District Attorney Jerome has finally been able to secure evidence sufficient to arrest one of the agents of "Town Topics" for blackmail. Colonel Mann, however, proprietor of the publication; will hardly land in prison, although he it is who, it is generally understood, forces the socially prominent to pay and be praised, or refuse this blackmail and be maligned, Yet decent women have been known to read that paper and decent business men to advertise in it. It ought to be looked upon as a compliment to be slandered by the paper; for it is a badge of courage to refuse its demands and praise in its columns means merely that a coward has paid. These are disgusting, trivial examples of crime and vice, and the authors of them are at least excluded from decent company, although they escape the prisons where they belong. The abler men who, in high finance, rob orphans and widowed mothers, are a higher type, for stealing is nobler than petty slander; but even they, in an ideal community, would hardly be looked upon as examples of the highest success, courted in society and regarded with awe by rising youth. Our moral standards need revision, and happily they are getting it. Let us consider the Equitable in this larger light and stick to it until a real improvement is assured.—Collier's, July 29, 1905.

A Browning Letter.

One of Browning's letters is a reply to a young poet who wrote asking Browning's advice about publishing a volume of poems. The reply, in part, is as follows and may serve a useful purpose to young poets of today as well: "It sounds strange and almost sad to me that I should be imagined of authority in this kind, I who for years could not get a line printed except at my own expense, and I began half a century ago or more."

Magnificent Majority Is Predicted.

"Active work is already under way for the fall campaign," says the editor of the Scranton Tribune, "and the assistants of Republican State Chairman W. R. Andrews have entered upon an aggressive fight for the success of the whole ticket. Although Democracy is making desperate attempts to profit by the troubles that have recently attracted so much attention in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania's superb Republican organization will not be affected by the efforts of the enemy. The ticket presented this year is one of the strongest that has ever adorned the Republican banner, and there is no question that it will be recognized by the usual magnificent majority at the coming election."

Spent Delightful Day at Lovely Hecla Park.

The reunion and picnic of the Reformed Churches of Clinton and Centre counties at Hecla park Thursday was by far the largest and most successful that has yet been held. It is estimated that there were fully 1,500 people on the grounds.

The train left Mill Hall with about 250 on board and picked up big delegations at every station along the line and by the time the park was reached there were fully 600 persons on board. A big delegation went down from Bellefonte and the other stations along this end of the line and large numbers came in carriages from Sugar Valley and other points.

The base ball game between Bellefonte and Lock Haven resulted in a victory for the Bellefonte teams and Hecla won the Hecla-Hublersburg game.

One accident at the park slightly marred the pleasure of the day. Joseph Lowery of Lock Haven in company with another young man was swinging on a big swing when his feet slipped and he was thrown to the ground with terrific force. He was rendered unconscious by the fall and remained so for some time. A doctor was summoned and succeeded in reviving him. He was severely cut and bruised about the head and face and one of his wrists was sprained.

Cattle Dying Cause Excitement.

Six head of young cattle belonging to W. K. Corl, tenant on the Charles Snyder farm, near State College, died from a disease that was not familiar to their owner or his neighbor farmers, consequently there was considerable speculation and excitement as to the cause of the loss. The farmers at once suspected "black-leg," and decided to call into consultation Dr. W. H. Fry. After an examination of the dead and living cattle, he diagnosed the disease to be drymurane a disease not contagious but fatal The cattle affected were treated, and pasture lots changed, with results entirely satisfactory.

The Happy Home.

Happiness must be founded on health. Where there is ill-health there will surely be unhappiness. The happiness of many a home has received its downfall at the table, spread with rich and dainty foods. The first symptoms of disease of the stomach are ignored as being disagreeable but not dangerous. Presently dyspepsia or some other form of disease fastens on the stomach.

At any stage Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. But the cure is quicker if the "Discovery" is used in the earlier stages of disease. If you have any symptoms of diseased stomach use "Golden Medical Discovery" and be cured.

"I feel that I would be doing an injustice to you if I did not send you a statement of my case," writes Mrs. David W. Guice, of Hamburg, Franklin Co., Miss. "I had liver complaint and indigestion. Everything that I ate disagreed with me. I suffered all the time with swimming in my head; heart beat too fast; my feet and hands were cold all the time. Did not sleep well at all. Was able to get about but very little. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' in May, '04, and by December I could begin to get about very well. Have been doing my work ever since. Feel better than I have for several years."

Birthday Surprise.

Wednesday of this week being the 42nd anniversary of the birth of Councilman James F Kane of Howard about sixty friends of the family gathered at his home in the evening unknown to him and his wife to celebrate the occasion, which was done to perfection. The evening was spent in social chat, games and both vocal and instrumental music, at the usual time an elegant repast was served, after which the fun was kept going on until the wee hours of morning, when, after wishing him many more such happy occasions all departed for their several homes.

The Pride of Race.

A conductor on one of the Brooklyn cars was collecting the fares before leaving the bridge, and as he called out "fares" to two Jews who were sitting in front of me, one of them held up a dollar bill, saying, "Two shintlemen."

This was too much for an Irishman across the car, and as he handed the conductor his nickel he said, "Wan Sheeney."

EXCURSIONS TO THE WEST

To the Pacific Coast—to California, Oregon, Washington—round-trip, long transit and return limits, liberal stop-over privileges.

The rate is practically on the basis of one fare for the round trip. Of course, if you wish to visit both California and Oregon or Washington, the cost is slightly more.

These reduced rates are in effect on certain dates in months of May to October, inclusive. They apply from all Eastern points via Chicago, St. Louis or Memphis gateways. The Rock Island System will take you up in either Chicago or St. Louis, or at hundreds of other Middle West points and carry you to the Coast in through Standard or Tourist Sleepers with unexcelled Dining Car service. The Rock Island also affords a choice of routes: on the "Scenic" route you can stop off in Colorado—see Salt Lake City—visit Yellowstone National Park; on the "Southern" route you can go via El Paso, thru New Mexico, then "up coast" to San Francisco and on to Portland or Seattle if desired.

In short, these Pacific Coast excursions offer an unusually good chance to see our western country in a comprehensive manner.

If you desire to go only as far as Colorado, there are excursion rates in effect to that section and return, all summer long, specially reduced June 30 to July 4, August 12 and 13, and August 30 to September 4. Extension trips to Ogden or Salt Lake and return at low cost also.

From September 15 to October 31, 1905, one-way tourist or "colonist" tickets will be on sale to California and the Pacific Northwest—about half regular fare.

If interested, send name and address on this coupon, designating which booklet wanted and to what point you plan to go. Name probable date of start also, so we can advise definitely with respect to rates, etc.

OVER A SCORE

TWenty-Three Dead as the Result of a Railway Accident in England.

FIRST CAR SMASHED.

Electric Express Train Collided with an Empty Stationary Train Wednesday Evening.

CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT UNKNOWN.

Liverpool, July 28.—An electric express train on the Lancashire and Yorkshire railroad, bound from Liverpool to Southport, collided Thursday evening with an empty stationary train at the Hall Road station, causing the death of 23 persons and the injury of many.

The first car of the express, which was crowded, was smashed to pieces and only six of its occupants escaped,

The road was recently given an electric equipment.

MANY KILLED OUTRIGHT.

This is the first serious accident that has occurred on an electric railway in England, and it filled with horror the numerous waiting passengers standing at the Hall Road Station, who were spectators of the disaster. The collision lifted the first car of the express completely off the steel frame and crashed it down again on the unfortunate passengers, 20 of whom were killed outright. More of them would have been killed but for the presence of mind of a Liverpool architect who, seeing that a collision was inevitable, shouted to his fellow passengers to throw themselves upon the floor of the car.

THE WRECKAGE TAKES FIRE

Almost immediately after the crash the wreckage burst into flames. The mangled bodies of the dead and the cries o the injured vainly beseeching that they be extricated from the burning wreckage, formed a terrible scene and many women on the platform fainted. The victims included several women and children. Fortunately the badly injured number comparatively few.

The cause of the collision is unknown.

FIFTY KILLED IN MICHIGAN.

Detroit, July 28.—A Tribune special from Ironwood, Michigan, says:

A passenger train is reported wrecked near here on the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad. It is feared that fifty persons have been killed. Most of the victims were Finns on their way to a temperance convention in Ironwood.

The wreck occurred a short distance east of Bergland Station. There are rumors that the number of dead may reach one hundred.

To Burn Out Negro Fugitive,

Plainfield, N. J., July 29.—The posse which has surrounded Dismal swamp, near here, since Tuesday evening, in the hope of either killing or capturing Charles Long, the giant negro, accused of murdering Matthew Cunningham on July 16, in Trenton, has decided to burn the dry grasses in the swamp land and thus drive the fugitive from his biding place. There is a reward of $250 for the capture of Long, dead or alive, offered by the board of freeholders of Mercer county, and the plan is to pick off the negro with shotgun or rifle as he is driven out by the flames.

Harvesting Delayed by Mosquito Scourge.

Entomologists are astounded at the scourge of mosquitoes in Central South Dakota. The hospital at Perre is filled with persons who have been bitten by the insects, and many are in a critical condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Croll, the five-year-old daughter of Henry Miller and two farm hands, John and James Ferguson, are among the authentic instances of persons who are so injured as to be placed in a critical condition.

Cattle and horses are driven frantic by the pests and becomes so unmanageable that harvesting has to suspend whenever the breeze abates, so as to permit the swarms of insects to swoop down upon human beings and live stock.

Massacre in 1778.

Three miles west of Old Fort, the Ephraim Keller farm, was the scene of a horrible massacre in May, 1778. An express rider, named Robert Moore, on his way from Bald Eagle to deliver a message to Arthur Buchannon, at Old Town Juniata (Lewistown) stopped at the house of Jacob Stanford (located on the Keller farm) and found the entire family—father, mother and two children—scalped by the Indians. The Stanfords were buried in one of the fields, and possibly the place is yet marked. Mr. Moore lived at the end of Nittany Mountain.

MATINEE RACES.

The First of the Season at Bellefonte Driving Park.

About 500 people witnessed the first races of the season at the Bellefonte Driving Park on Friday afternoon. The weather was fine and the track being in splendid condition the sport proved very enjoyable.

There were two events and they were both well worth seeing. The first was between Fred Musebarger's "Frank C." and W. D. O'Brien's "Rebe" a contest for blood to settle the controversy as to their speed which began when the former won the race at the Snow Shoe meeting July 4th. The Snow Shoe horse proved a winner this time and the Snow Shoe delegation was highly elated.

The second race was between W. V. Larimer's "Roan View" and M. B. Garman's "Noella." It was the first opportunity the public has had to see Mr. Garman's horse go and everyone was anxious to see this event. The horse made a good showing winning three straight heats and proving herself possessed of the right sort of stuff.

The summary was as follows;

Rebe, bl. m., Rank	1	2	1
Frank, b g. Wireman	2	1	2

Time—2:16¼; 2:20, 2:16¼

Second Race.

Noella, b.m., Garman	1	1	1
Roan View, r.g. Larimer	2	2	2

Time—2:27, 2:36, 2.26.

Traveling Man Held.

Benjamin Faulb, a traveling agent in the employ of a Cleveland Drug company was held for court by Alderman Batzle in Williamsport on Wednesday. Faulb is charged by John B. Rinhard, a butcher, with having sold meat preservatives containing boric acid after representing that the preparation was harmless. Rinhard is one of the men recently arrested by a state pure food agent for using such a preservative. He admitted using saltpeter, but denied having used any other substance. The saltpeter, which he had bought from Faulb, ignorant of its containing the poison, was analyzed by a druggist who found it to contain the acid.

Operator Met a Bear.

Robert Cole, of Tioga, telegrapher at Barber, in the Pine Creek gorge, met a big black bear on the track near that place a few days ago. He was armed only with a 22 target rifle, and bruin did not seem a bit afraid of him or his gun, leisurely taking a drink of water from the ditch by the side of the track. The operator thought he would try a shot, anyhow, so he cut loose at the varmint. It is not to be supposed that the shot damaged the bear's hide to any great extent but he didn't wait for a closer acquaintance but went off up the hill.

Gray--Heverly.

Russell A. Gray and Miss Laura Heverly were married, Wednesday evening, at the home of the groom's mother on east Lamb street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. B. Cox. Following the ceremony the calithumpians struck terror to the hearts of the newly-married pair until the police appeared upon the scene and the youngsters fled in dismay.

Girls, Lost in Woods, Lived on Blackberries.

While Joseph Cohen, wife and children were picnicking on the banks of Stony creek in Anne Arundel county, near Baltimore, last Sunday, his two daughters, Lena and Sophia, 5 and 7 years old, wandered into the woods and were lost.

Since that time a search day and night has been kept up to find the little ones, the whole surrounding country being explored and Stony creek being dragged for the bodies.

More than 200 persons each day have engaged in the hunt for the lost girls, and two negroes have been under arrest since Monday, suspected of knowing something of the disappearance.

Wednesday the girls were found sitting on the bank of a stream, alive and well, and were at once restored to their parents. The children were ravenously hungry, having had nothing to eat since Sunday except wild blackberries.

Fish Hatchery Property Enlarged.

Through a deal perfected by Merchant W. H. Noll Jr., of Pleasant Gap, the fish hatchery came into the possession of the S. H. Hoy property consisting of a dwelling and several acres of land. This gives the hatchery a coveted water supply and will open the way for the hatchery at Pleasant Gap to become one of the most important in the state.

OPPORTUNITY.

Addressed to the boys of America.

A judgeship is vacant, the ermine awaite
The shoulders of youth, brave, honest, and true,
Someone will be standing by fame's open gates,
I wonder my boys—Will it be one of you?

The president's chair of a great railroad maze,
Is empty today for death claimed his due,
The directors are choosing a man for his place,
I wondered my boys—Will it be one of you?

pulpit is waiting for some one to fill,
Of eloquent men there are only a few,
The man who can fill it, must have power to thrill;
The best will be chosen—Will it be one of you?

The great men about us will pass to their rest,
Their places be filled by the boys who pursue
The search for the highest, the noblest, the best,
I wonder who'll fill them; I hope 'twill be you.

A Fenced Village.

Marseiller, this county, has the novel experience of being fenced in. The Pennsylvania Coal & Coke Co. have built a fence around the town with huge gates closing every avenue of approach which makes agress or ingress impossible without permission.

We do not know the reason of this singular movement on the part of the company, as we are sure no one goes there, unless on business. Neither have we learned how the populace take to the idea of being thus isolated from the outer world. All the same the place is more inprgnable than was the wall at Pekin to the allied forces at the time of the Boxer insurrection.—Barnesboro Star.

Gets Income of $1,200 From 2 1-2 Acre Farm.

Oliver R. Shearer, residing just beyond the outskirts of Reading, has done more on 2½ acres of ground than any other farmer in the country. He supports his family, and has an income of $1,200 from its products.

The national government has become interested in Mr. Shearer's methods. He says:

"I raise in a season from 5,000 to 7,000 heads of lettuce, 30,000 to 50,000 small onions for bunching, 1,500 bunches of red beets and 400 stalks of asparagus.

"These are all marketed in time to raise a second crop, consisting of 5,000 heads of endive, 5,000 heads of lettuce, 800 stalks of tomatoes, 1,500 bunches of red beets and 10 000 to 20,000 stalks of celery.

"Economy of land is an important matter, and it is my constant study how to produce the most on the smallest space. An onion patch, 20 by 30 feet, netted me $40 for the year."

Grit Stereotyper Painfully Burned.

While the employees of the stereotyping department of Williamsport Grit were engaged on Monday in burning the dross of a large quantity of lead, the molten metal in the cauldron splashed into the air. Some of the heated globule came in contact with the face of Robert Murray, burning it in a painful manner. The skin was blistered.

Why is a Newspaper Like a Woman.

A western newspaper offered a prize for the best answer to the conundrum:

"Why is a newspaper like a woman?"

The prize was won by a lady in Oklahoma who sent in the following answer: "Because every man should have one of his own and not run after his neighbor's."

PERSONAL.—There is not a first-class drug store in town that does not sell CHICLETS.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life,

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives.

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions

One means of a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

A business is judged by its reading matter.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the

H Ott and a suit case the property of a barber named Fisher from Huntingdon. The suit case was later found out at the Nittany furnace on the cinder heap partially destroyed by fire. There is no clue to the burglar.

McGee, of Philadelphia, a former Bellefonte boy now sojourning at Atlantic City, gave a large party last Friday evening at the sea shore resort Among the guests was Will Toner, another old Bellefonte boy now of the Quaker City. The prize at bridge was won by Mrs Large, of Philadelphia, well known to many of our people.

—A jolly crowd of young ladies have been camping at Hecla Park for the past ten days. They call their camp "Camp Komfort" and it certainly looks it. —A stranger entered Bellwood on Thursday afternoon and has since been the subject of considerable comment. He is described as being 30 or 35 years of age, wearing a clerical coat. He called on Rev. G. T. Schools and asked a contribution for mission work in the slums of Altoona. On being refused he became quite angry and assaulted the Baptist church in general and the preacher in particular in such terms that Rev. Schools invited him to leave and gave him some assistance in so doing. To others whom he met he told of the affair denouncing the preacher as ungentlemanly, saying that he had refused him the use of his church and treated him rudely without provocation. At the Methodist parsonage he told a different story. He there represented himself as Rev. A. G. Pippett, of 1110 Eleventh avenue, a promoter of the "Bible Christian Science" church. He said he was a great nephew of Billy Bray, a famous Cornish Methodish, and had been a Methodist and later a Bible Christian in England, but had espoused the new faith because of his belief in anointing. It would be well for people to be on the lookout for the gentlemen.
